Authentic video demonstrations draw the attention

Teaching how to approach and tackle complicated oral health problems and situations is a challenging task. Professional educators know that usually the short moments of a lecture are not enough for students to absorb the huge amount of new information. However, great learning results can be achieved today by innovative use of the educator's own video cases.

Learning becomes easier with active and repetitive use of unique and visual education materials that go straight to the point. Videos with the educator's personal insights and concretely shown procedures draw the attention and keep the focus on the subject.

Modern educators utilize tools that help them to convey complex messages in easily understandable format. Real videos from the dentists' viewpoint explain more than any words and illustrations. They can be shared and repeated as many times as needed - until a dentist or a student has learned the subject.

Key benefits of using videos in professional dental education

The most obvious reasons to utilize personal videos in professional education are:

- Authentic videos and images show exactly what you see, do and mean
- Concrete visual cases interest and inspire students and other professional audiences
- Own dental videos and images are easy to shoot, store and share
- Secure digital workspaces provide an excellent ground for modern professional education

Recording videos and taking still images during the dental work is simple and easy. The small, lightweight camera is set up directly onto your loupe and the recording software is controlled with a foot pedal. You can share the video with the audience as you like: on-line, integrated into your presentation, through a shared workspace or as an e-mail link.

“I use videos before, during and after professional education classes. The participants can preview my case videos before the lecture through Futudent cloud server. Thus they are already focused, when I show the same videos in the lecture and talk about the procedures. Afterwards I share the complete education material to my audience.”
